

QUICK TALKS GRADUATE COMMUNICATION

Deliver a TED Talk-style presentation that highlights how your research (or a significant research interest) addresses pressing challenges or contributes to advancements that impact daily life, public safety, or societal well-being.

- VIDEO SUBMISSIONS DUE MARCH 21ST 5PM
- IN-PERSON COMPETITION TO TAKE PLACE APRIL 11TH

SUBMISSION REQUIREMENTS

This year's challenge asks you to deliver a TED Talk-style presentation that highlights how your research (or a significant research interest) addresses pressing challenges or contributes to advancements that impact daily life, public safety, or societal well-being.

These talks are limited to 5 minutes, during which you must make your research (or a significant research interest) and its value accessible to a public audience.

TWO STAGES

1

VIDEO SUBMISSIONS

The first round of the competition will be recorded presentations. During this stage, provide a link to your video presentation, the title of your talk, and a 50-word summary.

Recommendations:

- Recording yourself standing in front of your slide(s) delivering your presentation just as you would in person.
- Do not submit a voice-over run through of your slides.

2

IN-PERSON COMPETITION

Top entries will be invited to present at the live event on April 11th. You must be able to attend and participate in this event to win.

PRIZES

1ST PLACE $3,000
2ND PLACE $1,500
3RD PLACE $500
